It is said that Omar Pacha is almost broken-hearted on the Danube, at the dilatoriness of the Western allies. For months the Western Powers have been engaged in transporting a few thousand troops about 3,000 miles, with all the boasted and wonderful appliances of steam. No wonder that many have whispered treachery and lukewarmness on the part of the Western Powers. There cannot be a doubt but that the delay has been caused by the British Ministers, and particularly by Aberdeen, their chief, hoping against hope, that the Czar would give in and that war would be unnecessary. Such a blunder has proved worse than a crime. First, the troops were sent to Malta instead of direct to Turkey, then the commanders of the forces to testify to the honors due all the ladies who delayed their departure from France and England. The cavalry and artillery also, without which the army could not move, were sent in the slowest conveyances. But all this must have an end. The Czar could not be esjoled or frightened, and Raglan and St. Arnaud, the English and French military commanders, have arrived in Turkey, and the cavalry and artillery will soon be there .-Military operations on the part of the Wested that an English and French force has occupied Varna.

press: Mr. Smith, of Va., passed a glowing culoglum upon Gerritt Smith to-day, in the course of his remarks upon the New York Hard Manifesto. He gave him a cordial invitation to visit Virginia, and even to discuss there the subject of slavery. On the conclusion of Gov. Smith's complimentary notice of Mr. Gerritt Smith, Mr. Clingman, of N. C., warmly shook the latter gentleman by the hand, and assured him that he concurred with all the gentlemen from Virginia had said. If Gerritt Smith is not on his guard, I am afraid he will be seduced from his allegiance to the cause in which he has been long enlisted. He is evidently a great favorite with the Southern members on account of his gentlemanly bearing and the originality and novelty of his opinions. He is a greater abstractionist than old Mr. Tazewell or the late Dr. Cooper, or Mr. Calhoun, and never addresses the House without commading the closest attention. While Messrs. Sumner, Chase, Seward, and Giddings are regarded with great aversion by the Southern delega-tions in both Houses, Mr. Smith who is a more ultra Abolitionist than either of them, is careased and admired. The reason for this singular apparent inconsistency is to be found I conceive in the belief that Mr. Smith is an Abolitionist from moral and religious convictions—the others from political mo-tives and hatred to the South. Smith discusses the subject of slavery in the spirit of a philanthropist and a Christian-they, in the spirit of demagogues and greedy aspirants mail steamers.

England and

Or There has been, says a London letter. a great battle between the English government and the monied interests. The latter have just been defeated in Parliament, but it is a question whether they will not ultimately win. The government wants money to carry on the war, and believing that the war will not last long-are in hopes that it will not-it seeks to raise the money needed by issuing Exchequer bonds. The monied interests say that the war funds ought to be raised by means of a loan. By a loan, those raised by means of a loan. By a loan, those interests would, no doubt, fill their coffers with profit, for they would depress the funds part, was tern up from behind forwards; the with profit, for they would depress the funds and raise the loan on their own terms. Gladstone, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, knows this, and is seeking to make a better bargain for the government. If, however, the war lasts long, he will, it is believed, be obliged to resort to a loan.

small creek by the name of Chatata, which runs North-east, and empties into the river Hiwassee some short distance above the Railroad bridge. I yesterday was pointed to the spot where "us lead miners" would call its out-crop, and examined its surface indications, such as sulphate of bayrates, float mineral, wall rock, &c. I then entered near said creek a small adit or drain cut say 200 feet, to where the vein has been cut; here at a perpendicular depth, say 12 or 14 feet, it shows a well defined vein of 4 on 6 inches.-A small opening had been made some three feet below its drainage and a lump of ore raised, weighing 500 lbs. I saw well defined feeders pointing to the spot where this spiendid specimen lay. I feasted my imagination for a few moments and then hastily examined its wall rock, and took its bearings and course, 42 East by North; its dip about the same South; South wall, without acid test, appeared magnesian limestone; North, bastard marble, or carbonate of lime. I felt well paid for my visit and rested well the same night, with the feeling that somebody would reap a rich reward in mining for Lead at this desirable spot.

For the Post. The public Examination of the members of the Calhoun institution commenced on Wednesday evening, the 7th inst., and continued Thursday, Thursday night and Friday. The exercises were very interesting and satisfactory, evincing to all present that the time of the past session had been a source of valuable improvement to all who attended for that purpose. The scholars all equitted themselves with much credit to hemselves and teacher generally; and I feel it more particularly due the young ladies to say there were some most excellent compo-sitions read, and the declamation of a temperance speech by one of the ladies, which I challenge any temperance lecturer to excel, either in point of argument or eloquence.

At the close of the exercises on Friday vening, we were conducted to a public Supper, prepared by the Ladies of Calhoun and vicinity, and to say it was the finest I ever saw would probably be too feeble an encomium of praise, notwithstanding I have attended many that I thought very fine indeed; out I appeal to any of the large and wellordered assembly who were in attendance, were engaged in making it.

And in connection with the foregoing comnunication, it becomes our painful duty to say, that after the dispensation of his many mercies God saw proper, for some wise purpose beyond our comprehension, to deprive us of one of our highly estesmed and much loved friends.
